

PubCon To Sponsor Door64 Tech Fair In Austin, Texas On June 15

Austin, TX May 14, 2010 -- PubCon, the premier search and social media conference and expo, has announced that it will sponsor and exhibit at the 2010 Door64 Tech Fair, to be held on June 15, at the AT&T Conference Center, Austin, Texas. This event, the second annual Door64 Tech Fair, was created to help technical workers network, make job leads, and strengthen existing business relationships, and is an event PubCon expects to appeal to many of its attendees.

"We're glad to be able to help support the 2010 Door64 Tech Fair, a unique and important event that will help anyone looking to build new business contacts or expand existing partnerships," Brett Tabke, PubCon and WebmasterWorld founder and chief executive, said. "Stop by the PubCon booth in the exhibit hall and get information about our upcoming 2010 PubCon Las Vegas conference to be held on November 8 - 11," Tabke concluded.

Matt Genovese, founder of Door64 and a past speaker at PubCon, expected that the 2010 Door64 Tech Fair would appeal to the tech-savvy attendees of PubCon.

"I'm thrilled to have PubCon participating in the Door64 Tech Fair," Genovese said. "PubCon is an excellent gathering of top brass from the online search and social media realms, and many members in the Austin and central Texas door64.com community have benefited by engaging in PubCon conferences to learn about the latest online trends. I'm excited to have PubCon involved in the Door64 Tech Fair," Genovese added.

"As PubCon attendees have no doubt realized, networking is crucial for finding new business and refreshing existing relationships," Genovese said. "Likewise, professional networking is a paramount theme at the Door64 Tech Fair. The goal of the Door64 Tech Fair is to showcase central Texas technology companies for thousands of local technology professionals to induce new customers, partners, suppliers, hiring candidates, investors, and more. My motto has been that 'exposure breeds opportunity,' and the Door64 Tech Fair is a catalyst for that opportunity," Genovese said.

"Our inaugural event last year had 37 local tech companies, one thousand attendees, and excellent testimonials from everyone involved, and this year we're expecting our second annual event to have even a greater showing," Genovese noted.

"Any central Texas-area technology company is invited to participate in the Door64 Tech Fair exhibition, and given our local support of search and social media companies, I'm expecting to see excellent participation on that front," Genovese said.
